SAFEGUARDING YOUR BANK IDENTITY

ATM Safety

- Protect your personal identification number (PIN). Do not write it on the back of your card. Stand directly in front of the ATM when entering the number – so no one can look over your shoulder.
- Money should be put away as soon as you withdraw it from the ATM. Do not stand and count your money, conceal it immediately. Do not openly carry it to or away from the ATM or night deposit.
- Be ready to conduct transactions before approaching the ATM or night deposit.
- Conduct your business quickly. Do not loiter in the vicinity.
- Use a well-lighted ATM or night deposit – be observant. Try to have someone with you when you're banking at night. Be cautious of anyone who is lingering around the ATM or night deposit.
- Caution should be exercised when going to and from your bank. Stay alert. Do not display cash or checks. Keep them concealed in your purse or pocket. Be cautious of strangers.
- At ATM's, take your receipt from the machines. Do not leave the receipt in the machine or lying on the ground. The receipt may show your account number.

Skimming Theft

Credit card skimming is one of the most dangerous and rampant forms of credit card fraud today. Identity thieves have handheld magnetic card readers that can be purchased on the internet or improvised to glean personal information off the magnetic strip on credit and debit cards. Data is transferred to other magnetic strips to make counterfeit credit cards. The thieves have been waiters, gas station attendants, and store clerks. Even private automatic-teller machines can be rigged to skim account numbers and PINS. To protect your credit card:

- Keep an eye on the ATM or credit card. Avoid letting waiters, sales clerks, or gas station attendants disappear from view with your credit or debit card, to avoid "skimming." A handheld electronic device can be used to copy the data. Consider using cash.
- Make sure no one is looking over your shoulder when using your card. In this day of electronic gadgets, a cellular phone with photo capabilities can take a picture of your card to make a duplicate.
